Three years since the Tatmadaw's so-called clearing operations in Rakhine and the exodus of over 700,000 Rohingya people into Bangladesh, the international community continues to fail in stopping the atrocities in Myanmar. This online webinar examines the relevant developments in Myanmar and how ASEAN, the UN, and other stakeholders have responded to the crisis and what accounts for the failure and ineffectiveness of these responses. What are some of the lessons that could be learned from these failures and what are some of new ideas that need to be explored by ASEAN and the rest of the international community?

Presenter

Dr Noel M. Morada, Director, Regional Diplomacy and Capacity Building, APR2P

Discussants:

Debbie Stothard, Coordinator and Founder, ALTSEAN-Burma

Wai Wai Nu, Women's Peace Network

Edmund Bon Tai Soon, Former Malaysian Representative to the ASEAN Inter-Governmental Commission on Human Rights (AICHR)
